PASSAGE 1 THE BRITISH MENTALITY

Although I had stayed in England for over a year, it was difficult for me to understand the British mentality. Traveling to the office everyday by train, I watched people concealing their faces behind newspaper. They rarely conversed with each other, occasionally lifting their eyebrows to look at their fellow passengers. But when I started a conversation under the pretext of the weather I found many had a natural gift for gossip.

PASSAGE 4 THE GENERATION GAP

The world is undergoing a rapid change. That is, views, opinions, fashion, and even traditions are changing rapidly. The old cannot adapt themselves to these changes easily. They always talk about good old days, and grumble about the young, which leads to a generation gap. Parents always mention the problems of the young. If there is one, then, we can say that it is the old who create it. Everyone is of the opinion that the young are, after all, human beings-people just like their parents. There is only one difference between an old man and a young man: the young man has got a bright future before, him and the old one has got a lot of experience behind him.

VOCABULARY

PASSAGE 5 MEMORY

There is no simple answer to the question, "How can I enhance my memory?" But there are some general points one can make. Firstly, you have to practice. Practice remembering things. Secondly, use your memory. Preferring to make notes all the time rather than rely on one's memory is a terrible mistake. It's certain that you actually risk making your memory worse that way. In order to utilize your memory, you have to be keen to remember-eager to remember. If you really mean to remember things, you can. And thirdly, always make associations when you want to remember anything.

VOCABULARY

to enhance:	to develop	to rely on:	to trust
to risk:	to take the risk of	to utilize:	to use
keen:	willing, enthusiastic, eager	eager:	ready/ willing, keen

PASSAGE 8 WORDS

Because words can break silence, and thus remove tension, we often draw on them for this reason and not mainly for what they mean. When two people are introduced, one says, "How do you do?" Now this is not really a question, despite its apparent meaning, and the other person will reply not, 'Very well thank you,1 but 'How do you do?' This is the conversational formula. The purpose of the phrase 'How do you do?' is not to communicate meaning but to break the tension which would result from silence.

VOCABULARY DEFINITIONS

thus: therefore, so
to draw on: to use, to resort to apparent: obvious, clear to remove: to take out
tension: worry, anxiety
to result from: to be caused by

PASSAGE 27 CRIME

Crime in the cities has had more publicity than crime in the suburbs, but in recent years many of the suburbs have found their crime rates increasing faster than those of the cities. One crime prevention aid is the Neighborhood Watch Program started five years ago and sponsored by the National Sheriffs' Association. The aim is to get people to watch out for their neighbors. They are asked to be alert for any unusual activity, such as strangers who may be bringing things out of a house to an unfamiliar waiting vehicle. Statistics show that this system works quite well.

PASSAGE 30 PETS

In most European countries pets are considered to be part of families. Parents would sooner keep pets in their houses than buy their children toys preventing them from thinking or forming independent personalities. Psychologists also suggest that children should have pets so that they can learn how to share. When compared with other children, a child who has a pet is more affectionate and helpful. However, some parents are not in favor of keeping pets in their houses due to the problems the animals may cause. I think parents who are against having pets should determine whether their comfort or their children's preference makes their sons or daughters happier.

PASSAGE 31 TV CHANNELS

Some advocate only one channel, or maximum two on TV because they state that it is really difficult to produce good programs for one, let alone for three or four or more. With a lot of channels, the standard of programs drops. The government cannot control all the programs-this means there can be a sharp increase in the amount of violence and sex on TV. What's more, the radio stations can go bankrupt. These are all their arguments. And some argue against the idea of having one channel. They think that rivalry among channels is necessary because it can produce only better programs, that is, more TV channels, better programs. You can have a lot more subjects with different topics. Everybody has got a freedom of choice and the right to learn about what is going on in other parts of the world. Well, who can decide who is right and who is wrong?

VOCABULARY DEFINITIONS

PASSAGE 32 SPIES

Although most countries employ spies/ few will ever admit that they do. Therefore it is only on the rare occasion of a spy being caught by an enemy country that the public becomes aware of what goes on behind the political scenes. Even the exchange of a captured enemy spy for one of the country's own master-spies who had been caught by an enemy country is done as secretly as possible. Early one cold December morning last year, three men dressed in heavy black overcoats got out of a small blue car that had stopped on a lonely bridge in Northern Germany. They stood on the bridge for fifteen minutes waiting and watching until they saw a motorboat draw up and stop below the bridge. Seeing three men stepped out of the boat and glanced up at the bridge, they quickly made their way down to the riverbank and the boat. No words were spoken when the six men met. A short time later the boat pulled away and three men, too in black, and one in dark gray, returned to the waiting car.

PASSAGE 33 MODERN LIFE

My grandmother was the daughter of a farmer who lived near a country town. When she was young, she used to complain that life provided her with few opportunities of meeting interesting people and offered her the chance of pursuing her education. But that was fifty years ago. We still live in the same farmhouse. We still relish the peace of the countryside and the quiet of the woods, but our life is very different from that of our grandparents. Why is this? What has made our life so different? The reason is, of course, that discoveries and inventions made since their time have immensely extended the range of our eyes and ears. One might almost claim that these inventions can bring the whole world to us in our homes.

PASSAGE 37 NIGHT TERROR

It happens early in the night, usually during the first two or three hours of sleep. The person sits up in bed suddenly, talks incoherently, and may get up and move around wildly. He appears to be terrified of something unseen and his pulse and respiratory rates may have doubled. But no external danger is present. Until recently, this episode would have been classified as a nightmare. Today, it would be recognized as representing one of two distinct phenomena. One is the familiar nightmare, a bad dream that occurs rather late at night and ends in a sudden awakening. The other is more correctly called a night terror.

VOCABULARY

incoherently: unintelligibly, incomprehensibly
pulse: beat, throb
to double: to increase twofold
episode: period, event
nightmare: terrible, frightening dream
distinct : different
to be terrified of: to be frightened of

PASSAGE 44 EYE CONTACT

The eyes themselves can convey several kinds of messages. Meeting someone's glance with your eyes is usually a sign of involvement, while looking away signals a desire to avoid contact. Most of us remember trying to avoid a question we didn't understand by glancing away from the teacher. At times like these we usually become very interested in our textbooks, fingernails, the clock - anything but the teacher's stare. Of course, the teacher always seemed to know the meaning of this nonverbal behavior and ended up picking on those of us who signaled out uncertainty.

VOCABULARY

to convey: to send
involvement: taking part, concern, interest
to signal: to show, to indicate
to end up: to finish up uncertainty: hesitation, doubt glance: quick look
to avoid: to keep away from, to evade
stare: intent look, gaze
to pick on: to choose, to decide on

PASSAGE 45 INVENTIONS

Two factors are particularly significant in the history of inventions. One is the part played by inspiration, which can be far more vital than that of careful research. An example of this is the discovery of insulin by Frederick Banthing. He knew very little about the large amount of work which had been done in the field. Nevertheless, he succeeded where other more knowledgeable experimenters failed. The other factor is chance. Alexander Fleming's discovery of Penicillin was an accident. He was cultivating bacteria, when a cell of what we now call penicillin fell in the bacteria. And this coincidence led him to his important discovery.

VOCABULARY DEFINITIONS

vital: important, urgent knowledgeable: expert, experienced to cultivate: to develop, to nurture coincidence: accident, chance
inspiration: bright idea, motivation, encouragement nevertheless: but, yet, still
to succeed (in doing something): to be successful

PASSAGE 46 MEDICAL CARE

Medical care has changed greatly since the days when the family doctor treated all family members for every type of medical problem. Today's physician is usually a specialist who treats only problems with his or her specialty. Today's specialists often work together in a large group in order to share costs. The group will buy expensive equipment for its own offices rather than use hospital facilities. The physician's office usually has a laboratory where a variety of medical tests can be done. So, unlike the family doctor, who often visited patients at home, today's doctors normally see patients in their office, where they can use specialized equipment.

VOCABULARY

a variety of: a number of unlike: different from, contrasting
to specialize: to become a specialist
to treat: to care for, to try to make a patient well again
specialty: a particular type of work a person does best equipment: things used for particular purpose
facility: pieces of equipment or services provided for a particular purpose specialist: a person who has a particular skill or knows a lot about a particular subject.

PASSAGE 47 WRITING VS.TELEPHONING

Most people would rather call than write because it takes less time. They place a great deal of emphasis on accomplishing things as quickly and efficiently as possible. So it is not startling that we would place a ten minute phone call to let a loved one know what is going on in our lives rather than spend an hour explaining details in a three page letter. In addition, telephoning is more convenient because there is less work involved. When using the phone, we merely dial and begin to talk. When writing a letter, however, we must find stationery, write the letter, address it, get a stamp on it, mail it, and then wait, who knows how long for reply.

VOCABULARY

startling: surprising and frightening convenient: easy, useful or suitable to involve: to require, to mean stationery: paper, envelopes, and other materials for writing
emphasis: special or extra importance given to an activity
to accomplish: to succeed in doing something

PASSAGE 48 LITERATURE

The study of humanities has always been prevented by its abstract terminology. Literature as distinct from the fine arts, deals exclusively with words. Lacking the visual aspect of painting and the audio aspect of music, it remains an ambiguous entity that is constantly being redefined. Definitions of literature often reflect two extreme positions. There are those who see literature as a form of art, as a way of translating experience, and others who see it as a social document.

VOCABULARY

abstract: way of thinking based on general ideas rather than on real things and events
to prevent: to stop
aspect: feature
entity: thing, unit, being constantly: always, continuously
reflect: show, display.
distinct: separate
exclusively: involving only the things mentioned, solely ambiguous: unclear or-confusing
to (re)define: to describe, to name (again)
extreme: very great in degree or intensity

PASSAGE 49 URBANIZATION

The nineteenth century experienced a sudden growth of cities, with populations ranging from 100.000 to 8 million. An important reason for this urbanization lies with the Industrial Revolution and the Agricultural Revolution. Due to the introduction of steam power, the number of factories increased rapidly. Since the use of steam power required large amounts of coal and iron, there was a great need for a labor force. Consequently, more and more workers came both to the factories and to the local fields. Hence, towns and cities developed round the new industries.

VOCABULARY

PASSAGE 51 MOON

The moon revolves once on its axis each time it turns around the Earth, thus always displaying the same face to the observers on the Earth. However, even to the unaided eye this unchanging face shows two divergent types of landscape -dark, plain-like arm of low relief, and brighter, decidedly more rough regions which cover about two-thirds of the surface. Early astronomers erroneously referred to the smooth dark areas as maria (or seas), giving the name terrae (or lands) to the bright upland regions.

VOCABULARY

to revolve: to rotate, to turn
to display: to show, to demonstrate divergent : different decidedly: definitely surface: face
to refer to: to consult, to mention

PASSAGE 53 DAYS IN THE HAMLET

When Laura approached school-going age the discussion about moving became more urgent. Her mother didn't want the children to go to school with the hamlet children because she feared they would tear their clothes and catch cold and get dirty heads going the mile and a half to and from the school in the village. So vacant houses in the market town were inspected and often it seemed that the next week or the next month they would be leaving Lark Rise forever; but, again, each time something would happen to prevent the removal and, gradually, a new idea arose. To gain time, their father would teach the two eldest children to read and write, so that, if asked by the School Attendance Office, their mother could say they were leaving the hamlet shortly and, in the meantime, were being taught at home.

VOCABULARY

to approach: move toward, come near urgent: important, necessary
to inspect: to examine, to check
removal: going away, moving, departing
hamlet: village, town
to arise: to happen, to occur

PASSAGE 54 GREEEN HOUSE EFFECT

The man made agent of climatic change is the carbon dioxide (CO_2) that pouring out of the world's chimneys in ever-increasing quantities since the industrial revolution began. And in the past few years scientists have began to suspect that there is a second man-made source of CO_2 which may be as important as the burning of fossil fuels, namely the steady destruction of the world's great forests. Computer studies have suggested that if the concentration of CO_2 in the atmosphere were to be twice that of today's, there would be a rise of between 2 C and 3 C in average temperature. The danger is that the more the concentration of CO_2 in the atmosphere, the less sunlight escapes back into space. That is, some of the sunlight is trapped by CO_2, which acts like the glass in a greenhouse, allowing sunshine and heat to pass in but not out again. Consequently, the temperature rises.

VOCABULARY

greenhouse effect: the build-up of such gasses as carbon dioxide in the air and their causing a gradual rise in the atmosphere by trapping the heat from the sun

to pour out: to flow continuously
to suspect: to think, to believe

PASSAGE 56 THE MEXICO GAMES

No meeting was attended by more controversy beforehand than the Mexico Games. The major problem was the high altitude of Mexico City- over 2^134 m. above sea level—which meant that no middle-or long-distance runner from a low-altitude country had any real chance of beating the 'men of the mountains'. Australia's Ron Clarke, for example, went to Mexico as a multiple record-breaker but came close to collapse during the final stages of the 10.000 meters and had to be revived afterwards with an oxygen mask. On the other hand, the thin air was an advantage in events like the short sprints and hurdles and the long and triple jumps.

VOCABULARY

games: sports competition, athletics competition
controversy: argument, discussion
to revive: to bring back to consciousness
to come close to collapse: almost collapse (faint or fall down)
to attend: to accompany

PASSAGE 57 STRESS

Stress is a factor in all our lives. Learning to deal with stress in a positive, intelligent way is essential to good health. One way to combat stress is to get rid of it in physical activities. Anything from jogging around the neighborhood to an exercise on the dance floor can relieve stress and, surprisingly, give you more energy to come with life. Stress can also be controlled by changing your mental attitude. Learn to accept things; fighting against the unavoidable or the inevitable is useless. Learn to take one thing at a time. Rather than trying to do everything at once, deal with more important problems first, and leave the rest to another day. Learn to take your mind off yourself. Since stress is self-centered, doing something for others helps reduce it.

VOCABULARY

to deal with: to manage, to tackle, to attend to
to get rid of: to become free of, to discard
to relieve: to lessen or to end sorrow, pain etc.
inevitable: that cannot be escaped from self-centered: interested chiefly in oneself
to combat: to struggle with; to prevent
to jog: to run
attitude: manner, feelings
unavoidable: inescapable, inevitable

5 ..... what you don't need, he wrote.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. The writer points out that doing physical activities .....
   A. may weakens one's health and lead to stress.
   B. not only helps you get over stress but also make you energetic.
   C. is only limited to jogging around the neighborhood.
   D. is very surprising if it is done on the dance floor.
   E. does not help one relieve stress.
2. It is pointed in the passage that there is no point in .....
   A. insisting on escaping the things which are sure to happen.
   B. accepting things as they are.
   C. getting away from the events which please you.
   D. wasting one's energy doing unnecessary activities.
   E. fighting against stress as it is difficult to get rid of.
3. Stress results from ……
   A. putting the things that you will do in order of importance.
   B. dealing with more important things first and leaving the rest to another day.
   C. always helping the other and not thinking of oneself.
   D. trying to control and change your mental attitude.

PASSAGE 58 SOCIAL STATUS

A status is a position an individual occupies in a social structure. In a sense, a status is a social address. It tells people where the individual "fits" in a society - as a mother, college professor, senior citizen, or prison inmate. Knowing a person's status —knowing that you are going to meet a judge or a janitor, a ten-year-old or a fifty-year-old -- tells you something about how that person will behave toward you and how you are expected to behave toward him or her. Misjudging status is a frequent cause of embarrassment -- as when a woman invites a man she assumes is a bachelor to an intimate dinner and discovers he is married.

VOCABULARY

to assume: to suppose
to fit: to be suitable or proper to occupy: have
to misjudge: to underestimate
janitor: a doorkeeper
to discover: to learn
bachelor: an unmarried man
embarrassment: shame
intimate: very close
inmate: a person confined with others in a prison
senior citizen: an elderly, esp. one who is retired in a sense: partly
judge: a public official with authority to hear and decide a case in a court of law

PASSAGE 60 BUYING TOYS

Buying toys for children can be somewhat confusing and frustrating for parents as well as for gift givers. Children can show surprising preferences in toys; a favorite is not necessarily expensive or unique or "in". Matching toys carefully to a child's age, however, can help this dilemma. Children usually fall into several different "toy - preference" age groups. Infants under eighteen months go through two stages. Before they can sit up, they enjoy toys that appeal to the senses, such as colorful mobiles, squeaky rubber toys or big chewable beads. After they can sit up, babies like "graspable" things like blocks, nesting and stacking toys, and cloth picture books. Children from eighteen months to three years (toddlers) like toys that move (as they are learning to do). Toddlers also like to use their hands.

PASSAGE 61 SCHOOLING

In strictly practical terms, schooling yields three rewards, and the amount of each reward increases in proportion to the amount of schooling. First the individual who is well schooled stands the best chance of getting any job, other things being equal. Thus, the chance of unemployment is reduced. Second, the individual with a good background is the one chosen for advancement and promotion, thus enabling him or her to earn more over the long run. Third, because of rewards one and two, the educated individual has more personal freedom. Such a person will have more job opportunities from which to choose, is less threatened with unemployment, and can be freer economically because of his or her higher earning power. The decision in favor of further schooling needs to be encouraged if only for the above listed pragmatic reasons.

VOCABULARY

unemployment: joblessness
to school: to educate
further: more, additional
to reduce: to decrease
in favor of: in support of
the long run: a long period
the long run: a long period
in proportion to: compared with

PASSAGE 62 PRIMING METHOD

Did you ever have someone's name on the tip of your tongue, and yet you were unable to recall it? When this happens again, don't try to recall it. Do something else for a few minutes, and the name may pop into your head. The name is there, since you have met this person and learned his or her name. It only has to be dug out. The initial effort to recall primes the mind, but it is the subconscious activities that go to work to pry up a dim memory. Forcing yourself to recall almost never helps because it doesn't loosen your memory; it only tightens it. Students find the priming method helpful on examinations. They read over the questions before trying to answer any of them. Then they answer first the ones of which they are most confident. Meanwhile, deeper mental activities in the subconscious mind are taking place; work is being done on the more difficult questions. By the time the easier questions are answered, answers to the more difficult ones will usually begin to come into consciousness. It is often just a question of waiting for recall to be loosened up.

VOCABULARY

to loosen: to become free.
dim: dark
initial: first
to dig out: to find
subconscious: (of) mental activities that one is not aware
to tighten: to squeeze
to prime: to prepare
to recall: to remember

   A. to meet that person and learn his or her name.
   B. that we should read over the questions before answering the easy questions.
   C. to deal with something else for a while.
   D. related to being confident of oneself.
   E. struggling to recall what we want to.
3. If students skip difficult questions without forcing themselves and work on easier ones ....
   A. mental activities in the subconscious mind will succeed in answering the easy questions.
   B. they won't be able to do more difficult ones and not try to answer all of them.
   C. priming method won't help them at all and they will be unsuccessful.
   D. subconscious activities in the mind will work on difficult questions and make the students ready for them.
   E. answers to more difficult questions will only remain in the subconscious mind and the result will be failure.

PASSAGE 63 FRIENDSHIP

Sheer proximity is perhaps the most decisive in determining who will become friends. Our friends are likely to live nearby. Although it is said that absence makes the heart grow fonder, it also causes friendships to fade. While relationships may be maintained in absentia by correspondence, they usually have to be reinforced by periodic visits, or they dissolve. Several researchers decided to investigate the effects of proximity on friendships. They chose an apartment complex made up of two-story buildings with five apartments to a floor. People moved into the project at random, so previous social attachments did not influence the results of the study. In interviewing the residents of the apartment complex, the researchers found that 44 percent said they were most friendly with their next-door neighbors, 22 percent saw the people who lived two doors away the most often socially, and only 10 percent said that their best friends lived as far away as down the hall. People were even less likely to be friendly with those who lived upstairs or downstairs from them.

VOCABULARY

sheer: pure, absolute
at random: without purpose
to fade: to die away
correspondence: mail, letters
previous: earlier, before
to determine: to decide, to find out

PASSAGE 64 LOVE

There is only one passion which satisfies man's need to unite himself with the world, and to acquire at the same time a sense of integrity and individuality, and this is love. Love is union with somebody, or something, outside oneself, under the condition of keeping the separateness and integrity of one's own self. It is an experience of sharing, of communion, which permits the full opening of one's own inner activity. The experience of love does away with the necessity of illusion. There is no need to inflate the image of the other person, or of myself, since the reality of active sharing and loving permits me to go beyond my individualized existence, and at the same time to experience myself as the bearer of the active powers which constitute the act of loving. What matters is the particular quality of loving not the object.

VOCABULARY

passion: enthusiasm, excitement
to acquire: to get, to obtain separateness: being apart
illusion: false idea or belief
bearer: owner, possessor
to do away with: to get rid of, to dispose of
to satisfy: to please
to permit: to allow
to inflate: to increase
image: impression
existence: survival
to unite: to join, to bring together

PASSAGE 65 RAILWAYS

Those who welcomed the railway saw it as more than a rapid and comfortable means of transit. They actually saw it as a factor in world peace. They did not foresee that the railway would be just one more means for the rapid movement of aggressive armies. None of them foresaw that the more we are together, the more chances there are of war. Any boy or girl who is one of a large family knows that. Whenever any new invention is put forward, those for it and those against it can always find medical men to approve or condemn. The anti-railway group produced doctors who said that tunnels would be most dangerous to public health; they would produce colds, catarrhs and consumptions. But the pro-railway groups were of course able to produce equally eminent medical men to say just the opposite.

VOCABULARY

to put forward: to present
pro: for, in favor of consumption: tuberculosis
eminent: famous
catarrh: flow of liquid of the nose and throat
means: ways
to condemn: to criticize

PASSAGE 66 THE POOR

It is commonly assumed that poor are lazy people who could work if they were willing. In fact, over 60 percent of the poor consist of children under age fourteen, elderly people over age sixty-four, and people of working age who are ill or in school. Another quarter work but do not earn enough to rise above the poverty line. This leaves less than 15 percent of the poor of working age who do not work, and the vast majority of those are the mother of young children. When it comes to work, the poor do not look as bad as their reputation, for most of them are too old, too young, too sick, or too busy caring for children to work.

PASSAGE 67 HOMES

The institutional care we provide to our older people is a good reflection of the overall attitude of our society toward the aged. In the past few years, nursing homes have received wide attention as boring, meaningless places where people often have little else to do but wait for the end of their lives. Senile wards in mental hospitals are even worse. One of the appalling things about nursing homes has been the unwillingness of people on the outside to show real concern for what happens in these institutions. Even people who are entrusting a parent to the care of a home rarely ask about the nurse-patient ratio, about the kind of creative facilities or physical therapy equipment available, or even about the frequency of doctor's visits.

VOCABULARY

institutional: related to the (building of) organization for social welfare available: on hand, obtainable
to entrust: to trust somebody to safeguard somebody or something nursing homes: attention, treatment places for old people
senile ward: division for the old people in a hospital

PASSAGE 68 REGRESSION

Regression, one of the defense mechanisms, is withdrawal into the past. If the rejected fellow regressed in a childlike way, he would behave as a child. He might burst into tears, or pout, suck his thumb, throw things, scream, and have a tantrum. Regression calls for a return to earlier ways of handling problems. It is generally used when a person is deeply upset and cannot cope in a mature manner. Young children who have been toilet-trained and taught to drink from cups often regress and forget their training when a new baby arrives in their home. The older child does not know how to win parental affection in the new situation. Consequently the child must resort to previous methods for gaming attention and love. The result is regression.

VOCABULARY DEFINITIONS

defense: protection
withdrawal: departure, retreat
to regress: to go back rejected: abandoned
to suck: to draw into the mouth by the use of lips
to call for: to require to resort to: to turn to

PASSAGE 69 HOW TO LODGE A COMPLAINT

One of the greatest frustrations in complaining is talking to a clerk or receptionist who can't solve your problem and whose only purpose seems to be to drive you crazy. Getting mad doesn't help, for the person you're mad at probably had nothing to do with your actual problem. When complaining in person, ask for the manager or supervisor. When complaining by letter, get the name of the store manager or company president. (A librarian can help you find this information.) If you are complaining over the phone, ask for the customer-relations department. If there is none, then ask for the manager or appropriate supervisor. Or talk to the head telephone operator, who will probably know who is responsible for solving problems. Be persistent. One complaint may not get results. In that case, it may work to simply keep on complaining. This will "wear down" resistance on the other side. If you have a problem with a store, call the store two or three times every day. Chances are someone there will become fed up with you and take care of your complaint in order to be rid of you.

VOCABULARY

Complaint: complaining
To rid: To do away with
To take care of: To deal with
To keep on: to continue, to carry on Persistent: insistent, not giving up
To wear down: to make gradually weak
Resistance: Power of opposing (using force against)
To drive crazy: To make crazy
Appropriate: suitable, proper
To complain: to say that one is not satisfied
To lodge a complaint: to make a complaint
Frustration: disappointment, dissatisfaction
Supervisor: person who watches or directs

PASSAGE 70 DRUNK DRIVING

The majority of automobile accidents result from alcohol. A person who has drunk too much beer gets into a strange state called drunkenness. This state is marked either by an unpleasant feeling of loss of balance, or by falling asleep. Either of these problems is dangerous for drivers. On the road, a drunk driver is too dizzy to pay attention to traffic signs, and his lack of control may lead him to run a stop sign, exceed the speed limit, or swerve his car. As a result, he may either hit another car or a person. It is very likely that he will crash his car and often he will kill or injure himself or others. Therefore, the government has established stricter laws against drunk drivers.

PASSAGE 71 RAISING HOUSEPLANTS

Raising houseplants involves nearly as much care and knowledge as raising children. First, both plants and children are sensitive to their environments. For example/ a plant will grow faster and 'be much healthier if it is raised in an environment of tender, loving care. The same is true for a child, who will be happier and healthier if his parents love and nurture him. Similarly, proper care of houseplants requires a basic knowledge of plants on the part of the owner. He must know, for example, which of his plants need direct sunlight and which need to be kept in shady places, and how much water each plant requires for the best growth and appearance. Parents, too, must have a basic knowledge of their children's needs in order to provide what is necessary for the best physical and mental development.

PASSAGE 72 CLASS ACTIVITIES

Through the class activities the teacher can develop creativity in the preschool child by giving importance and value to what the child has made and by encouraging him to develop his own ideas and thoughts. For example, when the child paints a boat on the sea, the teacher could ask him what he had painted, what colors he had used and why he had painted it. In this way, not only the teacher, but also the child is evaluating and describing the product. Furthermore, if the teacher ascertains that a child is not happy with the task he has accomplished, the teacher should show him the value of the task. This will give the child security in his work and will allow him to further develop his creativity.

PASSAGE 73 HAPPINESS

Happiness means different things to different people. For example, some people believe that if they have much money or many things, they will be happy. They believe that if they are wealthy, they will be able to do everything they want, and so they will be happy. On the other hand, some people believe that money is not the only happiness. These people value their religion, or their intelligence, or their health; these make them happy. For me, happiness is closely tied to my family. I am happy if my wife, my children and I live in harmony. When all members of my family share good and sad times, and when my wife and I communicate with each other and work together, I am happy. Although the definition of happiness depends on each individual, my "wealth" of happiness is in my family.

VOCABULARY

wealthy: rich, well off

PASSAGE 74 RUBBISH

If recycling of the rubbish is too complicated, then the government should consider other ways of salvaging raw materials from our rubbish, or at least putting it to better use. At the moment 90 % of our rubbish is dumped, sometimes near well-known beauty spots. In Japan they crush their rubbish, coat it in concrete and use it for making roads. In Sweden whole blocks of flats are heated by burning domestic rubbish in special incinerators, and in America they've found a way of obtaining oil and gas from rubbish. They do not waste their waste but are finding new fuels. It is time we started to think seriously about the growing shortage of raw materials in the world today and stopped this mad destruction of our environment by our throw-away society.

VOCABULARY

to recycle: to reuse
to salvage: to save, to recover
at least: no less than
to coat: to cover

PASSAGE 76 FATTY

Fats are high in calories and should only be eaten in small amounts, but they do slow down the speed at which food passes out of the stomach into the small intestine and so play an important part in staving off hunger. Truly, satisfying meals contain at least one slow-release food and some fat. But don't be tempted to eat, say, a large chunk of cheese or half an avocado pear at one sitting. Fatty foods should always be combined with carbohydrate. Potatoes are nutritious, and a valuable sources of high quality protein and fiber. They are a fast-release food, and should be eaten with some fat to slow them down. Baked jacket potatoes are best eaten with a modest put of butter or melted cheese. You can even eat a few roast potatoes or chips, provided they are cut fairly large to soak up less fat.

VOCABULARY intestine: tubes in the body through which food passes when it has left the stomach

to stave off: to stop fatty: food containing fat
to satisfy: to be enough for
to soak up: to take in, to absorb
fat: oily or greasy matter in animal meat
to combine: to join, to bring together
satisfying: pleasing, enjoyable
modest: plain and simple fairly: quite, moderately chunk: portion, piece
nutritious: healthy
put: addition
fast-release food: food digested fast
slow-release food: food digested slowly
to tempt: to attract, to appeal to, to persuade

PASSAGE 77 DREAMS

Now and again I have had horrible dreams, but not enough of them to make me lose my delight in dreams. I like the idea of dreaming, of going to bed and lying still and then, by some queer magic, wandering into another kind of existence. As a child I could never understand why grownups took dreaming so calmly when they could make such a fuss about any holiday. I am mystified by people who say they never dream and appear to have no interest in the subject. It is much more astonishing than if they said they never went out for a walk. Most people do not seem to accept dreaming as part of their lives. They appear to see it as an irritating habit. I have never understood this.

VOCABULARY

horrible: awful, terrible
still: motionless, unmoving
to wander: to walk
grownup: adult
irritating: frustrating, annoying
astonishing: amazing, to be beyond belief
to lose delight in: not to enjoy anymore
queer: surprising, funny, unexpected
to take sth lightly: to consider sth to be unimportant
to make a fuss: to be anxious, to get worried
to be mystified: to be puzzled, to be confused

PASSAGE 78 FEAR OF TOUCH

All the distance, which men create, round himself or herself are dictated by fear of the touch of the unknown. They shut themselves in houses, which no one may enter, and only there they feel some measure of security. The fear of burglars is not only the fear of being robbed, but also the fear of a sudden and unexpected clutch out of the darkness. The dislike to being touched remains with us when we go about among people; the way we move in a busy street, in restaurants, trains or busses, is governed by it. Even when we are standing next to them and are able to watch and examine them closely, we avoid actual contact if we can. The promptness with which apology is offered for an unintentional contact, the tension with which it is awaited, our violent and sometimes even physical reaction when it is not forthcoming, the antipathy and hatred we feel for the offender proves that we are dealing with a deep seated human propensity.

VOCABULARY

clutch: grasp, hold
to avoid: to stay away from unintentional: accidental, unplanned
to remain: to remain
to govern: to rule
be awaited: be accepted / be looked for propensity: tendency
promptness: speed, pace
forthcoming: about to come out deep-seated: innate, deep-rooted, subconscious
offender: person who does wrong

PASSAGE 79 ZOOS

I must agree with you (if you are anti-zoo), that not all zoos are perfect. Of the 500 or so zoological collections in the world, a few are excellent, some are inferior and the rest are appalling. Given the premises that zoos can and should be of value scientifically, educationally, and from a conservation point of view (this serving both us and other animal life), then I feel very strongly that one should strive to make them better. I have had, ironically enough, a great many rabid opponents of zoos tell me that they would like all zoos closed down, yet the same people accept with equanimity the proliferation of safari parks, where, by and large, animals are far worse off than in the average zoo. An animal can be just as happy, just as ill-treated, in a vast area as in a small one, but the rolling vistas, the ancient, obliterate criticism, for this is the only things that these critics think the animals want.

VOCABULARY

inferior: poorer
appalling: awful, terrible, disgusting
to strive: to struggle, to do one's best rabid: narrow-minded, fanatical, extreme equanimity: calmness, self-control obliterate: wiping out, destroying rolling vistas: progressing/ continuing view
by and large: on the whole, taking everything into consideration
premises: places, buildings
conservation: protection, saving, preservation
ironically: funnily enough, sarcastically
opponents: enemy, challenger, rival proliferation: production, increase
ill-treated: badly treated, harmed, neglected

3. Let us calm down now, and resume our …….. and the scarcely broken thread of our argument.
4. They will advocate the deregulation of broadcasting and the …….. of channels.
5. Ruth's motto is that in order to enjoy life one must often help others and ……... situations that make people unhappy.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. The value of a zoo depends on .....
   A. the premises it occupies in a given area.
   B. the value of its premises for the government.
   C. the number of visitors who come daily.
   D. its being much more than a place of entertainment.
   E. the variety of animals kept in,
2. The writer points out that people who are anti-zoo .....
   A. are mad.
   B. approve of safari parks.
   C. criticize safari parks.
   D. are probably right.
   E. should be condemned.
3. The reason why the criticisms against safari parks are eliminated is .....
   A. the pleasant scenery.
   B. rolling animals in the grass.
   C. that animals are always happy.
   D. the ill-treated animals.
   E. the zoos closing down.

PASSAGE 80 WHALING

Man does not actually have to kill the last whales of a species with his own hands, as it were, to cause its disappearance. Biological extinction will quickly follow the end of commercial whaling, should that end be due to a shortage of raw material, that is, of whales. Whalers have long sought to defend their wretched trade by insisting that whales are automatically protected: as soon as they become rare, and therefore uneconomic to pursue, man will have no choice but to stop the hunting. That is a very nice theory, but it is the theory of an accountant and not of a biologist; only an accountant could apply commercial economics to complex biological systems. The reasons for its absurdity are many and varied. When the stock has been reduced below a critical level, a natural, possibly unstoppable downward spiral begins because of three main factors. Just to mention one of them, the animals lucky enough to survive the slaughter will be too scattered to locate one another in the vastness of the oceans.

VOCABULARY

to seek: to look for, to try to find
extinction: death, loss
accountant: secretarial
to scatter: to spread
vastness: bigness, hugeness, immensity
trade: buying and selling of goods; deal species: class, type
to whale: to hunt whales
varied: diverse, different
absurdity: illogicality, silliness
to pursue: to hunt
to slaughter: to kill
wretched: shameful, worthless
commercial: profitable, saleable, moneymaking

PASSAGE 81 A MEMORY

I awoke at two o'clock in the morning and heard weird noises coming from the animal room, scrunching sounds, interspersed with hissings and indignant sounds from Cuthbert. My first thought was that one of the larger anacondas had escaped and was making a meal off some of the other specimens. I shot out of my hammock and hastily lighted the tiny hurricane lamp, which I always kept by me at night for just emergencies. It gave little more light than an anemic glowworm, but it was better than nothing. Arming myself with a stick, I went into the animal room, I glanced round in the dim light and saw Cuthbert sitting on a tier of cages managing to look mentally defective and indignant at the same time.

VOCABULARY

weird: strange, odd
to hiss: to make the sound /s/
hurricane: storm
tier: row, shelf
mentally defective: mentally subnormal
glowworm: a type of insect, the female of which produces a greenish light
anemic: suffering from anemia (lack of enough blood)
hastily: quickly, hurriedly indignant: angry
dim: not bright
to glance: to take a quick look at anaconda: large snake of tropical South America to scrunch: to crush, to crunch
to intersperse: to scatter, to spread to arm: to give arms (weapons) to

PASSAGE 82 CHARM

If you are fed up with people propositioning you, asking directions or even just bumping into you on the street, don't call a policeman - brush your hair. Two American psychologists have discovered that people on the street keep at least three inches farther away from an attractive woman than from an ordinary-looking one and never mutter dirty things at her or ask for help. For those unsure of their charm, the psychologists' research offers a further test: move slowly and carefully closer to a man on a crowded rush hour bus. If you are attractive, he'll look uneasily up, down and out of the window. But if he just stands there ... oh dear!

VOCABULARY

charm: attraction
to proposition: to make an immoral proposal
to mutter: to speak in a low voice
to bump into: to meet by chance, to run into further: extra, additional uneasily: nervously, restlessly
rush hour: hurry hour (one of the periods of the day when crowds of people move to and from work)

PASSAGE 83 TARZAN

Tarzan is one of the few characters in fiction to have become a folk hero and although his popularity has fallen off since its peak in the 1920's, he is now said to be coming back into fashion. Yet no one anticipated that Tarzan would become a household word when the character was first introduced to the public. His creator, Edgar Rice Burroughs, had had a succession of jobs before turning to writing but they had fallen through. It was only when everything else had failed and it seemed impossible that anyone would offer him further employment that he fell back on fiction as a last resort. He wrote some stories which he did not show his wife because he was ashamed of such an unmanly occupation but when he was paid 400 dollars for the stories, he could no longer withhold the good news. It was then that he hit on the idea of Tarzan and it was Tarzan who made him a millionaire.

PASSAGE 84 TICKLE

'Why can't people tickle themselves?' Dr. Bernard Freedman says. It is a question that's had him stumped all his career. And now he has called on his colleagues to initiate serious research into the ticklish topic. Dr. Freedman, 77, a London physician specializing in lung diseases and allergies, written in the British Medical Journal: 'Everyone knows that if children are tickled in the ribs they are reduced to helpless screaming laughter. Those who can recall being tickled in the ribs will know that by an identical action you cannot tickle yourself in the ribs. I have no idea why there is this difference in response between someone tickling you and trying to tickle yourself. I don't suppose doctors have ever seriously thought about it before. However, I hope that neurologists will read my comment and perhaps suggest some answers.'

PASSAGE 86 VIOLENCE ON TV

A lot of people believe that television has a harmful effect on children. A few years ago, the same criticisms were made of the cinema. But although child psychologists have spent a great deal of studying this problem, there is not much evidence that television brings about juvenile delinquency. Few people in the modern world share the views of parents a hundred years ago. In those days, writers for children carefully shunned any reference to sex in their books but had no inhibitions about including scenes of violence. These days, children are often brought up to think freely about sex but violence is discouraged. Nevertheless, television companies receive a large number of letters, every week complaining about programs with adult themes being shown at times when a few young children may be awake. Strangely enough, the parents who complain about these programs see no harm in cartoon films for children in which the villain, usually either an animal or a monster, suffers one brutal punishment after another.

VOCABULARY

monster: giant
to shun: to avoid inhibition: embarrassment, shyness
juvenile delinquency: the young's criminal behaviour
brutal: evil, cruel, wicked
reference: mention, suggestion
violence: hostility, aggression

PASSAGE 87 ABSENTMINDEDNESS

My absentmindedness, though constant and long- standing, has usually manifested itself in trivial ways. However, there are two incidents, which though not world-shaking, may have caused certain people to doubt my sanity. The first was when my wife asked me to take the sitting room clock to be repaired. With my two children in the car I drove into the marketplace of our little town and, clock under arm, entered the shop. Only it wasn't the right shop: it was the butcher's. My children, who always delighted in their father's affliction, watched giggling as, with my thoughts far away, I stood staring into the butcher's eyes. I had been a customer for a long time and the good man smiled in anticipation as he twirled his cleaver in his hand and I clutched my clock. This went on for several very long seconds before I realized where I was. There is no doubt I should have calmly purchased a pound of sausages, but my return to the world was too sudden, the prospect of explanation too unthinkable. I merely nodded briefly and left.

VOCABULARY

to twirl: to turn round, to circle
cleaver: ax, chopper
incidents: events, happenings
to manifest: to show
anticipation: expectation, hope
to purchase: to buy
world shaking: very important

PASSAGE 89 MATURITY

A type of maturity is needed before a person enters marriage. This type of maturity, however, is not necessarily a fixed state, but an ongoing process that may last throughout the person's life. The question of maturity contains a number of subparts: physical maturity (the ability to reproduce), moral maturity (a code of life that gives guidance and direction to one's life) emotional maturity (the ability to control one's emotions), social maturity (the ability to play a part within the society), and vocational maturity (the ability to support one's family). Without these elements of maturity, it is doubtful that a solid marriage can be built, although there are always exceptions.

VOCABULARY

code: rules
ongoing: continuing moral: ethical
vocational: occupational, employment, job
to last: to endure
maturity: development, age
to reproduce: to have children
exception: omission, leaving out
fixed: permanent, unchanging
solid: lasting, endurable, fixed

PASSAGE 90 TELEVISION

Dazzled by the magic of television, we tend to forget what we might have been doing without television. We might have read more, thought more, written more. We might have played more musical instruments, spent more time outdoors, embroidered, knitted, whittled. We might also have consumed more spirits and drugs, to relieve boredom. What is certain is that we would have spent more time relating and learning to relate to other people. We would have felt more urgency about creating a more sociable environment for ourselves, and we would have worked harder to achieve it.

VOCABULARY

to dazzle: to amaze, to astonish
outdoor: open-air
to knit: to weave, to join, to unite
to consume: to drink
boredom: monotony, dullness
urgency: importance, necessity
to tend : to be apt to, to have a tendency to embroider: to sew, to decorate
to whittle: to cut, to shape
spirits: strong alcoholic drink
to relate to: to form a relationship, to interact
to achieve: to accomplish

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences, with a suitable form of the words defined above.

1. Plants .... to grow big and lush on heavy soils.
2. We live in a world in which one third of the population .... two thirds of the world's resources.
3. Remember not to spend too much time on one particular drill, since ..... can easily set in and have a disruptive influence.
4. Exhibitions are major arenas for spectators of art, as well as for artists' struggles ……. reputations and recognition.
5. Far below the windows of the suite, the jungle exhaled mists of early morning …….. the eye as the sun brightened.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. If we didn't watch so much TV, we would .....
   A. spend less time thinking.
   B. be dazzled by its magic.
   C. forget to read more.
   D. buy more musical instruments
   E. be doing many other things instead
2. When we are bored we watch TV and this .....
   A. doesn't let us knit more.
   B. makes us spend more time outdoors.
   C. prevents us from buying and drinking more alcoholic drinks.
   D. causes us to play musical instruments at home.
   E. leads to the consumption of more drugs.
3. As we spend most of our time watching TV, we don't try as hard as we should .....
   A. to establish more relationships with other people.
   B. because we are bored with programs.
   C. not to have a more sociable environment.
   D. so as not to waste time talking to other people.
   E. that's why we work and earn less.

PASSAGE 91 RECYCLING

Several British papers are printed on recycled paper, and salvaged paper has long been used for making cardboard boxes. The technology involved in this is fairly simple, but some interesting new processes have been developed recently. Paper can be eaten; it is softened and sweetened in a special machine and then fed to cows. In fact, it has been found that cows fed on cardboard boxes give particularly creamy milk. Unfortunately the human stomach differs from a cow's, so it seems unlikely that we shall ever be able to read the Times at breakfast one day and eat it for breakfast the next day, but stranger things are possible.

VOCABULARY

recycled: second hand, used
process: methods, practice
to differ: to be different salvaged: saved, recovered
to soften: to make softer
to involve: to concern
to sweeten: to make sweeter

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences with a suitable form of the words defined above.

2. In the 16th century, Elizabethans rarely cleaned their teeth but instead gargled with sugar water …….... the breath.
3. Planning colour schemes …….. choosing and balancing colours which will contrast or harmonise in a pleasing way.
4. To make an aluminium can from ..... material uses only 5% of the energy required to make a "new" one.
5. Situated within the everyday, television …….... quite fundamentally from cinema which is still, characteristically, a 'specialized activity".

READING COMPREHENSION

1. In England, the paper that several newspapers use .....
   A. is simple and interesting process
   B. is taken from the cows' boxes
   C. can be eaten at breakfast.
   D. can be used as creamy milk
   E. is made of used and thrown out paper
2. Milk obtained from cows eating processed paper .....
   A. is better quality
   B. smells cardboard boxes
   C. tastes sweet
   D. is softer
   E. is mixed with cream
3. It is impossible for human to eat paper because .....
   A. we should first read the newspaper
   B. not all of us like the taste of paper
   C. our stomach is not like the cows'
   D. cows don't let us do that
   E. paper to be eaten is only enough for cows

PASSAGE 92 AN UNLUCKY NIGHT

I'll never forget the night our car broke down. We were on our way home after a marvelous evening out with mom's friends. It was well after midnight and we were still miles from home. We tried to start the engine, but in vain. There was no traffic on the road at all, so we couldn't get a lift and had to walk all the way home. To make matters worse, it started to rain. But worse was yet to come. When we arrived home we discovered that we'd left our front door key in the car. We had no choice but to break a window to climb in. By the time we got to bed, it was past three o'clock and we were cold, wet, miserable and absolutely exhausted.

VOCABULARY

to break down: to stop working in vain: uselessly, hopelessly miserable: unhappy, depressed
marvelous: wonderful
lift: ride in a car
exhausted: tired
well: considerably, extremely
but: except, other than
to make matters worse: in addition, to top it all off

PASSAGE 94 BIOLOGICAL CLOCK

It was long ago noted that different plants open and close at different times of the day. In fact, in the 19th century they used to make gardens in the shape of a clock face with different times. It was possible to tell the time just by looking at this 'flower clock'. No one really understands why flowers open and close at particular times, but recently some interesting experiments have been done. In one, flowers were placed in a laboratory in constant darkness. One might predict that those flowers, not having any information about the day, would not open, as they usually do. But in fact they continue to open as if they were in a normal garden. This suggests that they have some mysterious way of keeping time. They have, in other words, a kind of 'biological clock'.

VOCABULARY

to note: to notice, to comment on
to place: to put
to keep time: to know time
constant: continuous
to predict: to guess
mysterious: strange, puzzling
to suggest: to imply

READING COMPREHENSION

1. In the 19th century, gardens in the shape of a clock face .....
   A. were usually watered at different times of the day
   B. had only one kind of flower each
   C. had flowers which used to open and close all together
   D. gave the impression of darkness
   E. helped the owners of them to know what time it was
2. The reason why the flowers were put in a laboratory in constant darkness was .....
   A. to confuse the owner of the gardens in the 19th century
   B. to find out whether they will confuse the time and open at different times
   C. to learn the exact time of the day
   D. to have information about the time
   E. to examine the clock types
3. The experiment showed that .....
   A. darkness affects the way the plants open and close
   B. the flowers can only open in the garden
   C. don't have any Information about the day so they don't open
   D. plants have an unknown mechanism to know the time
   E. plants can only open and close when they have daylight

PASSAGE 95 TITANIC

On April 14, many of the sleeping passengers were awakened by a slight jolt. The ship had struck an iceberg, causing a 300-foot cut in her side, and five compartments were flooded. "Unsinkable", however, meant the ship could float if two, not five compartments were flooded with water. Ten miles away from the Titanic was another ship, the Californian, which had stopped because of ice fields and which had wired six explicit warnings to nearby ships. Unfortunately, the Titanic's wireless, a new invention on shipboard, was being employed for insignificant messages to and from the passengers. The tired wireless operator had worked long hours and impatiently told the Californian's operator to shut up and stop annoying him.

VOCABULARY

slight: unimportant, trivial
to strike: to hit
impatiently: intolerantly
to be awakened: to wake up/ get up to flood: to cover with water, to inundate
jolt: bump, shake
to annoy: to upset, to irritate
explicit: open, clear
iceberg: ice moving in the sea
to float: to drift on water
to wire: to telegraph
wireless: radio
insignificant: not important, irrelevant, minor

PASSAGE 96 COUNTRYSIDE

Luckily I don't live in Bath but nearly ten miles away in a village called Limpley Stroke in the Avon Valley. It seems to be normal in the countryside these days for professional people who work in the town to prefer to live in the villages; this makes the housing so expensive that the villagers and agricultural workers have to live in the cheaper accommodation in town, with the result that the farmers commute out to the farm and everyone else commutes in. Certainly there is no one in the village who could be called an old style villager. The people nearest to me include a pilot, an accountant, a British Rail manager, a retired French teacher... not a farm worker amongst them. But 1 don't think there is anything wrong with that - it is just that the nature of villages is changing and there is still quite a strong sense of community here.

VOCABULARY

countryside: rural area
to commute: to travel
nature: characteristics
accommodation: housing, lodging
to retire: to give up work, to stop working community: condition of sharing; all the people living in an area

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences with a suitable form of the words defined above.

4. His home is presently in Kidderminster from where he weekly …….. while he looks for a new house in the local area.
5. Being told when you have just turned fifty that it's time you ..... does rather hurt.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. The people who live in the village .....
   A. tend to work on the farms
   B. are mostly professionals who work in the town
   C. are unable to afford houses in the town
   D. don't like the old-style villagers
   E. commute to the farms.
2. Housing is expensive because of .....
   A. its being old style
   B. the professionals working in the village
   C. those with professions preferring to live in the villages
   D. the shortage of housing in the town
   E. the agricultural workers working on the farms
3. Despite the change in the basic quality of the villages, the writer thinks that .....
   A. it is a good place for farm workers to make money
   B. living there is not enjoyable
   C. the neighbors are too near to him
   D. there should also be a farm worker among them

PASSAGE 97 THE FIRST SIGNS OF LIFE

About a billion years after the earth had formed, the first signs of life appeared. Three billion years elapsed before creatures became complex enough to leave fossils their descendants could recognize and learn from. These were shelled creatures called trilobites, followed by jawless fish, the first vertebrates. During the Devonian period, great upheavals occurred in the earth's crust, resulting in the formation of mountains and in the ebb and flow of oceans. In the aftermath, beds of mud rich in organic matter nourished vegetation, and insects, scorpions, and spiders appeared. Next developed the amphibians, descendants of fish that had crawled out of fresh water.

VOCABULARY

creature: being, living thing
to recognize: to know
upheaval: disturbance, disorder
shelled: having a hard outer covering descendant: offspring, children, young
to elapse: to pass
to occur: to happen
to nourish: to feed
to result in: to cause
the ebb and flow: the receding and surging (of the tide)
vertebrate: having a backbone crust: outer layer, top coating
in the aftermath: as a result
to crawl: to creep

4. For Mary it resulted not only in domestic ……..., leading to the beginning of the break-up of her marriage, but to her early death.
5. Clouds of flies were ..... over the faces of the dead soldiers.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. Before the first signs of life appeared .....
   A. creatures had become complex.
   B. about a billion year had to pass.
   C. three billion years passed.
   D. the earth hadn't formed yet.
   E. there were fossils to learn from.
2. We can deduce from the passage that the earliest living beings .....
   A. can be called vertebrates.
   B. caused great upheavals on earth.
   C. had lived in mud.
   D. were not developed enough to leave fossils.
   E. were not easy for our descendants to recognize.
3. As a result of the great changes in the earth's crust .....
   A. other creatures came into being.
   B. insects and vegetation turned into organic matter.
   C. creatures had to crawl out of water.
   D. shelled creatures followed jawless fish.
   E. fossils were too damaged to recognize.

PASSAGE 98 ACID RAIN

Acid rain is now a familiar problem in the industrialized countries in Europe. Gasses like sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide are produced by power stations and cars. The gasses dissolve in rainwater, and this makes the acid rain, which damages trees, rivers and streams. Acid rain is also capable of dissolving some rocks and buildings made of soft rock, such as limestone, are particularly affected. The acid rain attacks the rock, and so carvings and statues are eroded much more quickly. Scientists estimate the rate of wear to be about a millimeter of stone every twelve years. That's enough to have caused some of the ancient carvings to become seriously damaged already.

VOCABULARY

to dissolve: to melt
to affect: to influence
to estimate: to guess
carving: statue, monument
to damage: to harm
to erode: to wear
wear: erosion, friction
statue: figure in wood, stone, bronze, etc

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences with a suitable form of the words defined above.

1. By the year 2010 the World Health Organisation …….... that up to 100 million people will be infected with HIV .
2. For a long time it has been known that heavy drinking during pregnancy can badly …….... a baby's development.

4. These bricks are generally thicker and harder-fired than wall tiles, to enable them to stand up to heavy …….. without cracking.
5. Nearer the top, all the soil and loose stones had been completely …….... away, leaving a huge dome of smooth gray rock.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. It is obvious in the passage that acid rains .....
   A. not only damage nature but also buildings.
   B. are only made up of sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide,
   C. even dissolve rainwater.
   D. are affected by some rocks such as limestone
   E. lead to problems all over the world,
2. Acid rain .....
   A. erodes Europe.
   B. produces sulphur and nitrogen.
   C. wears out rocks
   D. becomes seriously damaged.
   E. is affected by carvings.
3. The wear about a millimeter of stone every 20 years shows that .....
   A. it is too early to take actions against acid rains.
   B. serious harm had already been done to some ancient carvings.
   C. acid rain is not a problem to be taken seriously.
   D. there is still time for ancient statues to be eroded.
   E. scientists should not be alarmed unnecessarily.

PASSAGE 99 BIRDS' NAVIGATIONAL ABILITY

So far all attempts to relate the bird's navigational ability to electric forces and magnetic activity have failed. Magnets, and minute radio transmitters, attached to the bird's body, do not interrupt or influence migration. Radar beams bombarding the bird invisibly have no known effect. Rotation of migrants in covered cages during transport by car or plane does not confuse them on release. One look at the celestial clues, their sky compass, and. the really expert long-distance birds are away in the correct direction. Birds are not proved to carry a magnetic compass.

VOCABULARY

attempts: effort, endeavor
rotation: regular change
to influence: to have an effect on clue : hint, evidence
compass: device showing the north
cage: barred enclosure
minute: little, small, tiny beam: ray
release: freeing, letting go
navigational: related to the act of determining the course /route
celestial: relating to space/sky
invisibly: unnoticeable
to bombard: to attack

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences with a suitable form of the words defined above.

1. Sadly, the thief who leaves no …….... and is careful disposing of his ill-gotten gains is unlikely to be caught.
2. There is a belief that……. bodies in some way influence our planet and ourselves .
3. Work out a sound crop …….... for vegetables to deny pests a continuous supply of particular host plants.
4. Benny made a ..... adjustment to configure the goggles to her own eyesight, and frowned in the darkness.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. The main topic of the passage is .....
   A. the navigational ability of birds throughout the ages.
   B. how electric forces and magnets do not affect a bird's orientation.
   C. the bombardment of radar beams
   D. the way the birds look at the celestial clues
   E. radio transmitters and compasses.
2. The magnets placed on birds .....
   A. interrupt the migration of birds.
   B. act as a compass.
   C. have no effect at all.
   D. act as transmitters.
   E. confuse the birds.
3. The assumptions about birds' navigational ability have failed because .....
   A. radar beams affected the rotation of migrants.
   B. they can only be confused if they are kept in a car or plane.
   C. they are not affected by outside influence in finding their way.
   D. radio transmitters show the birds how to find their way.

PASSAGE 100 TOLERANCE

Lack of tolerance is an important problem of our age. People have been so intolerant of each other that even trivial matters may spark serious arguments. Living conditions can be said to compel people to spend most of their time concentrating on their business or their personal affairs. This may deprive people of exchanging their ideas with others or trying to understand different people. However, it doesn't seem impossible to form a tolerant society. The thing we should do first is to take up social activities to require that we share more with other people.

VOCABULARY

intolerant: impatient
to exchange: to swap
trivial: insignificant
to deprive: to take away, to deny
age: era, epoch
to take up: to begin
to spark: to start, to kindle
to compel: to force
tolerance: patience
to share: to go halves, to portion
to require: to necessitate, to involve

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences with a suitable form of the words defined above.

1. The real issues will be debated rather than the ……. details.
2. What …….... the idea off, I really don't know.
3. He is not subject to any action which could ..... him to change his attitudes or behavior.
4. If the seller commits a breach of condition or a breach of warranty, this will …….. the buyer of substantially the whole benefit of the contract.
5. When she found she was putting on some weight, she ..... swimming regularly.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. It is pointed out in the passage that .....

A. intolerance has been a serious problem in our age.
B. lacking tolerance doesn't make people quarrelsome.
C. unimportant problems make people aggressive.
D. living conditions prevent people from focusing on their work or their own problems.
E. people should neglect their individual interests to be tolerant.

2. It is implied in the passage that .....

A. people have been intolerant of each other due to unimportant matters.
B. trivial problems make our lives unbearable
C. we should concentrate on others' affairs rather than ours.
D. people's having to spend most of their time on their own business prevent them sharing their thoughts with others.
E. people don't need to share anything with others unless they are tolerant.

3. We can infer from the passage that .....

A. it isn't easy to form a tolerant society as long as we concentrate on our work.
B. it is possible that we will feel lonely unless we take up social activities.
C. social activities can contribute to forming a tolerant society.
D. it doesn't seem possible to form a tolerant" society owing to the problems in our age.
E. intolerant people should spend most of their time on their own.

Nor had either of us been best pleased when each had discovered that the other was planning a journey, and a book, about the British coast. It was too close a coincidence for comfort. Paul was working his way round clockwise by train and on foot, while I was going counterclockwise by sea. At Brighton the two plots intersected briefly and uneasily aboard Gosfield Maid.

VOCABULARY

aboard: on board, on (the ship, train, bus)
ally: friend, partner
to sour : to spoil
coincidence: chance, luck
to thin: to weaken
to intersect: to meet, to overlap
plot: plan, scheme
clockwise: (moving) in the direction taken by the hands of a clock
counterclockwise: (moving) in the direction opposite to that taken by the hands of a clock

EXERCISES

Complete the sentences with a suitable form of the words defined above.

PASSAGE 102 A PASSAGE TO INDIA

It's worth seeing "A Passage to India" for two reasons: the photography and the performance of Dame Peggy Ashcroft as Mrs. Moore, the wise, kind old lady who goes to India to see her son. The heroine is the girl who travels with her and accuses a young Indian doctor of rape. The climax of the film is the court case where she finally admits that he is innocent. If you are attracted by Indian history, then this film is for you. It happens to give a good idea of what it was like under British colonial rule. But, above all, it is an artistic film beautifully directed by David Lean, It is full of quiet imagery, best shown in the erotic Hindu statues that so frighten the heroine, as compared with the solid, heavy sculpture of Queen Victoria outside the local court.

VOCABULARY

wise: intelligent, clever
heroine: leading actress
case: legal action, suit
imagery: images
sculpture: statue, monument
solid: hard, concrete
climax: event of greatest interest
court: place where law-cases are held
to admit: to acknowledge, to confess above all: in particular, most of all

PASSAGE 103 THE MAGIC OF TOUCH

Infants usually satisfy this very basic need in the course of an ordinary day spent with their parents. However, if a baby is neglected or even mistreated by being deprived of touch, his development will suffer on all levels-physical, intellectual and emotional. Some children have even been known to die from this lack of tactile stimulation; it is thought by many doctors that many unexplained " deaths" are directly related to lack of touch and its various consequences. Children given out for adoption at a tender age and placed in poorly run orphanages, children brought up by unaffectionate parents, and children whose parents touch them only to beat them-all types of children run the risk of never reaching their potential as fully developed adults.

VOCABULARY

infant: baby
to satisfy: to meet, to fulfill
in the course of: during, throughout tender age: young age
to be deprived of: to be without
to mistreat: to abuse, to maltreat
to run the risk: to risk
to bring up: to raise, to educate unaffectionate: not showing love
stimulation: motivation
tactile: related to the sense of touching, tangible adoption: taking somebody to one's family as a relation orphanage: home for those who lost one or both of his parents.

PASSAGE 104 THE ENVIRONMENTAL DETERIOTAION

The deterioration of the earth's environment is the result of the impact of each individual on the environment multiplied by the number of individuals. Suppose you could choose any lifestyle you wished, you could, for example, choose to be a Buddhist monk or nun of certain sects. You would be forbidden to have money and be pious. You could own your begging bowl, a razor, a needle and thread, and that is all, your presence on earth would cause very little deterioration of the environment. On the other hand, you could choose to be an American millionaire. You might own several polluting factories and have a half dozen children - all eventually with their own houses, cars, and polluting factories. It is obvious that then, they would contribute much more to environmental deterioration than the Buddhist monk or nun.

VOCABULARY

monk: priest
pious: religious eventually: finally
to contribute : to add to nun: holly woman
to beg: to ask
impact: effect, shock, blow
to multiply: to increase, to reproduce
sect: cult
deterioration: worsening, decline
to forbid: to ban, to prohibit

PASSAGE 105 THE BICYCLE

[My mother] was a magician at making her money last longer. That December, with Christmas approaching, she was out to work and Doris was in the kitchen when I barged into her bedroom one afternoon in search of a safety pin. Since her bedroom opened onto a community hallway, she kept the door locked, but needing the pin, I took the key from its hiding place, unlocked the door, and stepped in. Standing against the wall was a big, black bicycle with balloon tires. I recognized it instantly. It was the same second-hand bike I'd been admiring in a Baltimore shop window. I'd even asked about the price. It was horrendous. Something like $15. Somehow my mother had scraped together enough for a down payment and meant to surprise me with the bicycle on Christmas morning.

VOCABULARY

magician: wizard, conjurer
to barge into : to enter, to make one's way in instantly: at once, immediately
horrendous: terrible, awful
down payment: first installment
to last: to survive, to endure
in search of : looking for second-hand: not new
to scrape together: to obtain with effort

PASSAGE 106 THE OLD FISHERMAN

I had walked along the river many times since meeting the fisherman that day in winter, but I did not see him again until spring. It was late afternoon, and I had bicycled to a point along the river about a mile downstream from where we had met hoping to find a deserted spot to draw a picture. I found a niche in the sloping floodwall and started drawing a junk moored not far from me. Half an hour passed, and just as I finished the drawing, I heard someone calling my Chinese name. I looked down to see Old Ding scrambling up the floodwall, his boat anchored behind him. I noticed that he limped badly, and when he got up close I could see that one of his legs was shorter than the other and set at an odd angle. Such was his balance and skill in the boats that I only saw his deformity when he came ashore.

VOCABULARY

to desert: to leave, abandon odd : strange
to limp: to walk lamely
deformity: abnormality, defect
spot: location
angle: position, perspective
sloping: leaning
junk: litter
to scramble up: to climb
niche: place
to anchor: to moor
to moor: to make (a boat, ship etc) secure to (ground or buoys) by means of cables etc., to anchor

PASSAGE 107 WHITE LIE

The most frequent motive [for telling a white lie] was to save face. Lying of this sort is often given the approving label of tact, and is used when it would be unkind to be honest but dishonest to be kind. Sometimes a face-saving lie prevents embarrassment for the recipient. The second most frequent motivation for lying was to avoid tension or conflict... Sometimes it seems worthwhile to tell a little lie to prevent a large conflict. You might, for example, compliment a friend's bad work, not so much for your friend's sake but to prevent the hassle that would result if you told the truth. The fifth and last motive was to achieve personal power. Turning down a last-minute request for a date by claiming you're busy can be one way to put yourself in a one-up position.

VOCABULARY

worthwhile: meaningful, useful
to turn down: to refuse, to reject
conflict: argument, quarrel
to save face: to avoid losing one's dignity
to hassle : to annoy, to disturb, to pester
motive: reason, drive
tact: skill, delicacy
recipient: receiver
to compliment: to praise, to flatter

4. Later, the doctor …….. the mother on the intelligence of her child.
5. I have been …….. and discriminated against a number of times just because of the way I look.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. A white lie .....
   A. is not often approved
   B. is considered to be unkind
   C. does not prevent embarrassment
   D. is as effective as a compliment
   E. can be resorted to safely and is harmless.
2. Telling a lie by complimenting a friend on his bad work .....
   A. causes us to hurt our friend's feelings.
   B. is a good way of irritating him.
   C. helps us avoid an argument with him.
   D. might show us as an insincere person.
   E. causes a lot of Conflicts. .
3. One of the benefits of telling a white lie is .....
   A. getting rid of people when you are busy
   B. to make yourself appear important
   C. to show your power to weak people
   D. telling the truth that might hurt others
   E. the rude way of rejecting requests.

PASSAGE 108 WHALE HUNTING

Over a hundred years ago, when Melville wrote his famous novel 'Moby Dick', hunting whales was a dangerous and sometimes fatal business, now, in spite of their size, whales are no longer an even match for men using helicopters, radar and explosive harpoons. As a result, some species, such as the giant blue whale, are on the verge of becoming extinct. Although some countries gave up whaling several years ago, there was no international agreement forbidding it until recently, in spite of the fact that alternatives to the whale products used in oils, cosmetics and candies were already in existence. The whale is not the only species fighting for survival. In the United States alone, conservationists have estimated that over a hundred kinds of animals, fish and birds will disappear before the end of the century unless action is taken to protect them. Although governments in many countries have done a great deal to control hunting and fishing for sport and have set up game reserves and bird sanctuaries where the species can brood safely in their natural surroundings, the number in danger is still increasing.

VOCABULARY

sanctuary: place of safety; shelter
on the verge of: close to, on the brink of even : equal
reserve: place or area for some special use or purpose
giant: huge, enormous, gigantic to brood: (of a bird) to sit on eggs to hatch them match: counterpart
to take action: to take measures
fatal: deadly, lethal
survival: continuing to live
to whale: to hunt whales
game: wild animals (hunted for sport or food)
harpoon: a sharp pointed weapon thrown by hand to hunt whales and large fish conservationist: person who dedicated himself to the prevention of loss, waste, damage of (nature)

   A. is not so dangerous today
   B. has always been dangerous
   C. is only dangerous if the whales are very large
   D. requires a lot of inexpensive equipment.
   E. used to attract men, but it does not now.

2. We understand from the passage that .....
   A. only a few countries still engage in whaling
   B. there is no international agreement forbidding whaling.
   C. whale products are the only alternative to cosmetics.
   D. whaling has now been stopped by international agreement.
   E. when confronted with hunters whales do not fight for survival.

3. It is obvious that .....
   A. governments are not conscious of the dangers threatening certain species
   B. governments in many countries were indifferent to the issue
   C. government action has reduced the number of species in danger of extinction
   D. the number of species in danger of extinction is increasing in spite of the governments' action
   E. whales are now completely free from danger.

PASSAGE 109 THE CASTLE

On the coast of California, on top of a mountain, stands an enormous castle which looks as if it has been lifted out of the Middle Ages and laid on the site. In fact the castle, called San Simeon, was built for the American newspaper proprietor, William Randolph Hearst but it is furnished with objects dating from different historical periods, which were transported from Europe. It took thirty years to build the castle and even then it was not completed. Throughout this time, over a hundred workmen were permanently employed on its site and the architect Julia Morgan, was continually obliged to change its design, as often as Hearst changed his mind. Rooms and whole floors were constructed but then had to be knocked down and rebuilt to please him. Agents were set all over Europe to find works of art to decorate the castle. Old ceilings and fireplaces, furniture, paintings and statues were purchased and shipped to America. An enormous number of objects were bought but many of them could not be used and had to be stored in warehouses, some of them not even unpacked.

VOCABULARY

to lay: to put
to oblige: to force
to ship: to transport
proprietor: owner
to construct: to build
warehouse: store, stockroom
to unpack: to take out, to empty
to furnish with : to put furniture in permanently: continuously, constantly
to knock down: to destroy, to pull down

PASSAGE 110 BRAIN

The human brain contains, I am told, 10 thousand million cells and each of these may have a thousand connections. Such enormous numbers used to daunt us and cause to dismiss the possibility of making a machine with human-like ability, but now that we have grown accustomed to advancing at such a pace we can be less sure. Quite soon, in only 10 or 20 years perhaps we will be able to assemble a machine as complex as the human brain, and if we can we will. It may then take us a long time to render it intelligent by loading in the right software or by altering the architecture but that too will happen. I think it certain that in decades, not centuries, machines of silicon will arise first to rival and then surpass their human progenitors.

VOCABULARY

to daunt: to scare, to intimidate pace: speed
to load: to put in, to fill, to pack
to rival: to compete, to vie decade: a period of ten years
to alter: to change
to surpass: to excel, to exceed progenitors: ancestor
to assemble: to put together
to render: to make, to cause to be to grow accustomed: to become used to
to advance: to move forward, to progress
to dismiss: to set aside, to think no more of software: program essential to the operation of computers

5. His first formal education was received in the reading school and at six years old he progressed to his father's grammar school, where he quickly ..... all his contemporaries.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. Now the complexity of human brain .....
   A. makes it impossible for us to create intelligent machines.
   B. causes us to dismiss the possibility of making intelligent computers.
   C. leads to our uncertainty about the ability of the machines.
   D. does not discourage us to make machines with human like ability
   E. frightens us and we feel we can't achieve such a thing.

2. It is pointed out in the passage that machines with human-like ability .....
   A. are likely to be made in the near future
   B. have almost no possibility of being made
   C. are very difficult to assemble
   D. need complex software
   E. move faster than human beings

3. It is suggested that in the long run human beings .....
   A. can rival intelligent machines and defeat them
   B. will be able to alter the appearance of the computers
   C. will be beaten by the machines they create
   D. should use silicon to make efficient machines
   E. can put as many cells in the machines as there are in the human brain.
